Fascinating Native Orchids

As winter ends, small leaves sprout from the earth, some long and narrow with pointed tips, hairy or shiny and reaching upwards; others long, tubular and vertical like a chive leaf; and many close to the ground, broad and rounded or pointed, or shaped like a heart with purple underneath, single or in rosettes.

Many small tubers that spent summer dormant, surviving the heat and dry, have responded to cooler, wetter weather and have sprung to life. Now is the time for them to grow and send up stalks with their small, fascinating orchid flowers.

There are many species of native orchids in Victoria, and the Brisbane Ranges is noted for them.

Open Day!

Sunday 1 November, 8.30am – 12pm

With summer coming up, we will be hosting an Open Day. Whether you are a seasoned local or just moved to the area, it's a great opportunity to pop in and have a catch-up. There will be trucks on display and lots of information on how to get your property ready for the upcoming fire season. We will post more information on the Facebook page in the coming weeks.

We are also really excited to share that we have recently taken delivery of a brand-new Tanker 2. It's a massive addition for our brigade replacing our current 26 year old tanker and will be a huge asset in keeping the local area safe. We are aiming to have it parked up on display for the open day so you can check it out in person, but if you spot us driving around before then, give us a wave!

Hope to see you down at the station on Sunday, 1 November

Better for Geelong compost donation

The Anakie Community House has received a donation of Better for Geelong compost for its garden – a product made locally at the City of Greater Geelong's Anakie Organics Processing Facility.

The AS4454-certified compost is backed by four years of soil testing. As a soil conditioner used alongside fertiliser, it improves moisture retention, unlocks existing nutrients and supports soil health for up to seven years.

Around 35,000 tonnes of green-bin material is transformed into compost at Anakie each year, supporting local jobs and keeping waste out of landfill.

Environment and Circular Economy portfolio chair Cr Elise Wilkinson said the locally made compost is a valuable resource. "It's reliable, rigorously tested and made right here in Anakie. Farmers can contact the City's Organics team to discuss bulk supply," Cr Wilkinson said.

Better for Geelong compost can be purchased directly from the facility by emailing organics@geelongcity.vic.gov.au or in smaller quantities from Lara Garden Supplies, Southpoint Garden Supplies in Torquay and Wallington WRG.

Safety Upgrades for Ballan Road

I've got some great news!

I've secured $1.5 million in funding for safety upgrades on Ballan Road, around Anakie Primary School.

Many of you will know, that over the past months I've been working alongside locals to address safety concerns along Ballan Road—especially right near Anakie Primary School.

The first step in this project is for the Department of Transport and Planning to properly assess what can be done to improve safety around the Primary School.

We'll be looking at all options to make sure our kids, families, teachers and school staff can get to and from school safely. This is a big win for the Anakie community and for everyone who uses Ballan Road regularly.

The Department of Transport and Planning have now brought in an independent road safety auditor, who'll be out and about, closely checking the current parking and pedestrian access to the school. Once that's done, we'll have a clear roadmap for what needs fixing, so we can make Anakie safer for everyone, especially our littlest locals.

As always, please get in touch with my office if there is any State Government matter in which we can be of assistance. Call 5275 3898 or email ella.george@parliament.vic.gov.au

They are not big and showy like cultivated orchids, but are just as beautiful and far more varied. They can be any colour of the rainbow, and some colours not included in it. Some, such as the sun orchids, with flowers more likely to open on warm sunny days, are of a similar shape to more familiar flowers, but others are far more bizarre.

One of the more unusual orchids, and also one of my favourites, is the flying duck orchid. Each tuber grows a narrow green to red-brown leaf close to the ground. They can be seen now, forming colonies, often at the base of large trees in very poor soil. The shiny brown flowers appear in early summer with one or more on a stalk usually 20-30cm tall. Each flower is shaped so that it has a body, outstretched wings, long curved neck, head and bill, looking just like a miniature flying duck. Most orchids are pollinated by insects, and instead of offering a reward of nectar, many use tricks to attract them. Flying duck orchids entice male sawflies. Like some other orchids, it either produces a scent similar to the pheromones of a female of the species, or part of the flower looks like her. The male lands on the head of the duck hoping to mate with her. The head snaps downwards against the body of the duck, trapping the insect. As it moves inside the flower, bundles of pollen stick to it. Within thirty minutes, the flower reopens, releasing the sawfly to carry its pollen to another flower.

Another group of orchids that deceive male insects in this way are the greenhoods. The flowers grow on stalks and have a hood of green, often with white stripes or touches of brown. They may appear to have horns standing up beside the hood. The most common and obvious of these are nodding greenhoods which grow in large colonies. The rosettes of leaves appear in autumn. If you return to them in late winter, you'll find the first flowers. Most greenhoods have upright hoods, but the flowers of nodding greenhoods droop or nod towards the ground. After pollination, the plants produce upright capsules. Stalks continue to grow, pushing capsules up, so when vertical splits form in their sides, the dust-like seeds can more easily spread on the breeze. As the weather becomes hotter and drier, the plants turn brown and die. Once the capsules have gone there will be no trace of the plants above ground until next autumn. Not all orchids trick insects. A few offer nectar. Some pollinate themselves, produce seed without pollination or spread by tubers.

Native orchids come in many shapes. Those with small brown flowers, such as gnat, mayfly and mosquito orchids resemble insects. Midge orchids are so tiny they are extremely difficult to find. Other brown orchids look like tiny helmets or baby birds, mouths wide open begging for food. A few orchids have beards. Some appear to have fingers of pink, blue or white. Spider orchids are green, red and white with stripes on the five long 'legs'. Wax-lip orchids spread patches of five-petalled purple flowers through the bush. Onion orchid leaves resemble chives. From each leaf grows a spike of tiny green flowers.

The Diuris group has beautiful yellow flowers with 'ears' sticking up or to the side. They are often marked with brown or orange and named after leopards, moths, hornets and wallflowers. One of the year's last orchids is the hyacinth orchid which sends a dark brown stalk up to one metre tall with many pink spotted and striped flowers. A few orchids flower in spectacular numbers after fire, but rarely at other times.

Orchids are small treasures waiting to be admired, but please don't pick them. They are protected by law and it is best to leave them to reproduce.

Boneseed

Chrysanthemoides monilifera subsp. monilifera

It's flowering now – act before it sets seed.

Spot it

Woody shrub to 3m. Bright yellow daisy flowers in clusters at branch tips, late winter to spring. Oval, toothed leaves; new shoots have white hairs. Round berries turn from green to black, each holding one hard, bone-coloured seed.

Why it matters

Boneseed forms dense thickets that smother native plants, strip wildlife of food and shelter, and increases the flammability of the bush. At the You Yangs, planted in the 1940s to stop erosion, it now covers about 1,300 ha of the 2,000ha park. Don't let Anakie's bush go the same way.

How it spreads

One plant makes up to 50,000 seeds a year. Birds, foxes and rabbits spread seed in their droppings.

It also moves in soil, gravel, machinery, water and dumped garden waste. Seed lasts up to 10 years, and fire triggers mass germination.

Your responsibility

Boneseed is a Weed of National Significance. Under the CaLP Act, it is a Regionally Controlled noxious weed in Victoria. Landowners must control it on their land and stop it spreading.

Take action now

- Hand-pull seedlings and small plants – roots are shallow.
- Cut larger plants low and paint the stump with herbicide within 15 seconds.
- Spray dense patches with a registered herbicide. Follow the label.
- Remove plants before berries form; bag any in fruit.
- Check every year for new seedlings.

Not sure if it's Boneseed?

Contact Helena Lindorff (local landowner) to assist with identification.

WHAT TO PLANT IN OCTOBER

The Brisbane Ranges are putting on a wonderful show of native orchids, (they're tiny) and bush peas as the wattles fade. With the soil warming, sow beetroot, carrots, lettuce, radish and potatoes, plus parsley and coriander. Climbing beans can go in late in the month. Harden off indoor-raised tomatoes, zucchini and pumpkins, ready to plant out after the last frost, traditionally Melbourne Cup Day. Top up your mulch and watch for snails on new growth.

Monthly Open Morning — Tuesday 20th October, 9.30am-11.30am. All welcome.

Native Plant Propagation Workshop — 14th November 10am - 1pm at the Community Garden. Run by Birds in the Bush Nursery. For more information and booking, contact the Anakie Community House.

Sorrel: (Rumex acetosa) is a perennial herbaceous plant; also called common sorrel, meadow sorrel, green sorrel, sour dock, spinach dock and narrow-leaved dock.

Sorrel is native to Eurasia, commonly growing wild in grasslands. It can be eaten as a leaf vegetable or herb. It is an herbaceous perennial plant with roots that run deep into the ground with juicy stems and arrow-shaped green leaves.

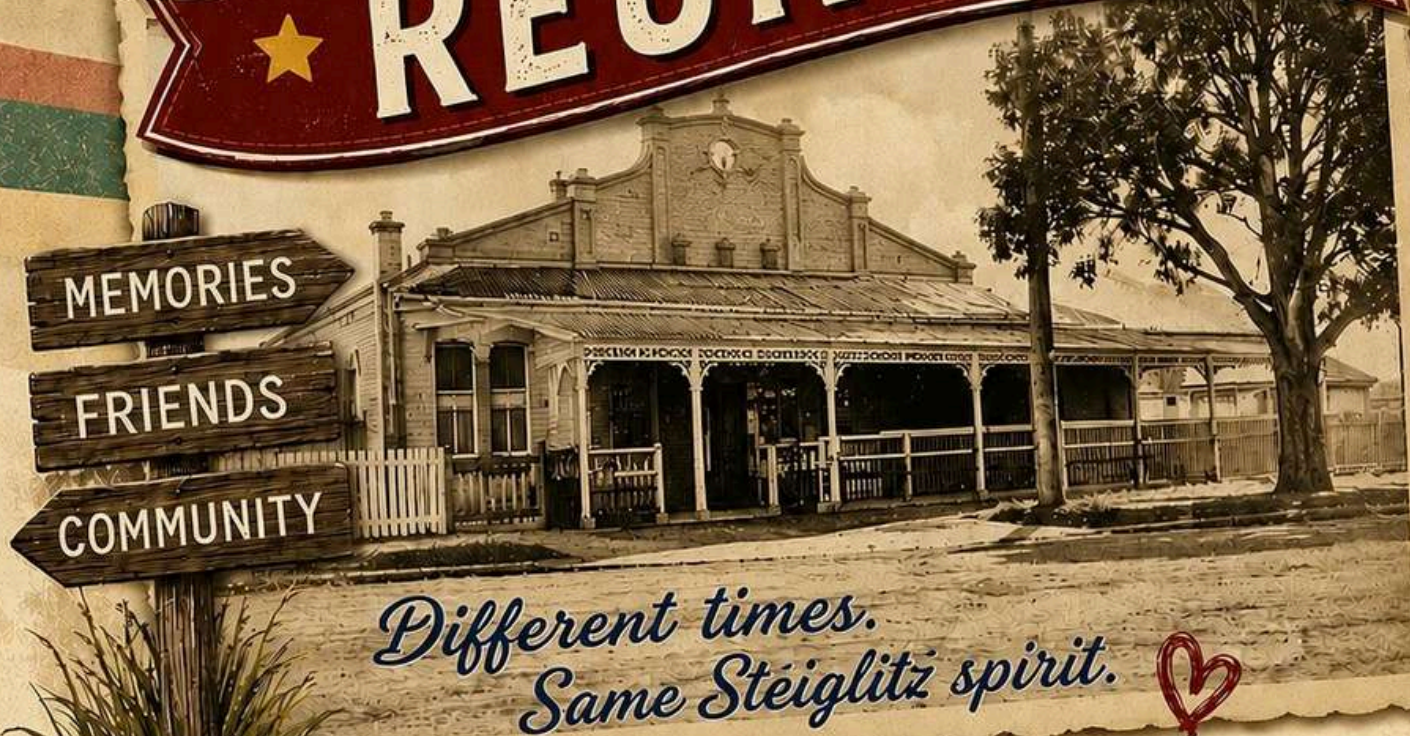

There is also a red-veined leaf variety (pictured). The leaves and young shoots can be used in salads and pureed in sauces and dressings. Sorrel is high in Vitamin C. The flavour is tart and slightly lemony. Note: the leaves are best used when young as the larger, older leaves can be a little tough.
